I am unable to make the Planning Com this aft but would like to comment on two points re the Verizon item.

First, as far as I can tell there are no markers on the poles to be used so that one can readily tell which ones are to be the bearers of this new equipment---and there is also no mock up (that I could find) that shows what the equipment will look like on the pole so people will see what is in their viewshed.

The town talk is about undergrounding not about loading up existing poles or adding poles. Also why load up poles which are probably close to trees if there is any chance of a spark from the installation starting a fire in a nearby tree.
